

The field installation elements described in this report will find use in other military, government, and industrial applications; chemical-biological-radiological protection, arctic living quarters, radar installations, communication systems, photo and civil defense shelters, and in oil, mining, and construction operations. ■ The features of the self-contained equipment make it ideal where the requirements include controlled environment, mobility and flexibility, quick setup and dismantling time, good interior design for high personnel efficiency, excellent reliability with long life, and simple maintenance and spares requirements.

FUTURE APPLICATIONS

